RESEARCH FOCUS

My research interests are within suicide prevention. Using the unique register data of Denmark and other Scandinavian countries, one area of my research focus on suicide risks related to stressful life-events and among socially stigmatized and marginalized groups, such as survivors of suicide, sexual minority groups, asylum-seekers, people in prison, and homeless people. Another strain of my work is dedicated to the understanding and prevention of suicide among older adults as well as people who suffer from chronic disorders. I am responsible for RCTs assessing effects of e-health tools, such as apps and avatars. Lately, I have commenced different research projects in alliance with volunteer organisations and Danish railway companies.

I work actively to establish a national action plan for suicide prevention in Denmark.
